05.50.00. POLICY STATEMENT

The Forest Preserve District of Cook County (the “District”) completed the Signage Master Plan and Sign Manual and Standards in November 2015. This policy is intended to guide the District on future signage decisions and to put a good faith effort to align its projects and plans with the Signage Master Plan and Sign Manual and Standards.

05.50.01. PURPOSE

Although the District currently has some signage standards, they are in several documents of different vintages and most were never officially adopted. This policy will create consistency for signage as a primary focus and also memorialize current policies and procedures. Wayfinding could also benefit from consistent standards in the District. Current wayfinding consists of entrance and preserve signs along roadways, grove maps in picnic area, and confidence markers along trails.

In addition to creating standards, another overall goal of the plan is to reduce the number of signs and update negative messaging on signs while ensuring visitor safety and that rules are followed. The District has a long history and a variety of signage has been installed over the years. Creating consistent signage will enhance the District brand and help visitors orient themselves more quickly.

05.50.03. DEFINITIONS

Signage: Signage is physical infrastructure usually with a visual graphic and words that provides information (e.g. parking lot grove/site map).

Wayfinding: Wayfinding encompasses all of the ways in which people orient themselves in physical space and navigate from place to place (e.g. trail maps).

Sign Placement & Zone Concept: A typical grove zone map identifies where signs are to be located within a typical grove or preserve. These guidelines must be followed throughout the District to insure an orderly and uniform placement.

Identification Zone: This zone is defined as those areas along roads and property lines that are typically experienced from a vehicle. The purpose of signs in this zone is for visitors to identify District property.

Entry Zone: This zone is defined as those areas along the entry drive before the first parking stall and is also typically experienced from a vehicle. The purpose of the signs is to provide the specific name of the grove or preserve and to welcome visitors. Placement of sign standards should be organized as not to detract the driver's attention and create a hazardous condition.

Orientation Zone: This zone is defined as the area along the parking lot and is typically experienced by pedestrians. The signs in this zone should be concentrated in information nodes, located in the most accessible and visible point in the preserve. The node should communicate opportunities within the preserve via maps and international symbols. This node should also include other information such as rules, regulations, special events and telephone numbers for emergencies and more information.

Trail Signs: Signs along trails are typically read by a pedestrian or from a bicycle to assist with wayfinding. These signs in this zone will regulate pedestrian/ bicycle use to provide trail information including start of the trail, trail mile markers and directions/information about other destinations available from the trail.

Special Area Signs: This category of signs for restoration projects, recreation areas and other unique sites are intended to convey information about regulatory messages, educational or interpretative messages, partner recognition, grant recognition and other temporary signs relating to programs or events. Many ponds and lakes signage are considered special recreation or restoration areas.

Buildings and Facilities Signs: There are a variety of buildings throughout the District including both public and non-public facilities. Signage should be clear for each building type and ensure the visitors understand the regulations associated with the building but using hospitable language to ensure visitors feel welcome.
